The Mother of Invention

Why didn't I think of that? April's guest speaker did – and did something about it...

Wendy Flack is a mother, innovator and entrepreneur. She recently travelled the insightful journey of creating and developing her own product - "Couple It". Wendy used her desire to help people and her own resourcefulness to learn the process of developing a product from design to manufacture and releasing it on the commercial market, gaining knowledge about trademarks, marketing and in international relations along the way.

Wendy will share with us some of her experiences and the hurdles she has faced and overcome as an inventor.

We hope you can join us...

ABOUT BPW

BPW is a global NGO that develops women's potential at all levels through advocacy, mentoring, networking, skill building, education, and economic empowerment programs & projects around the world. We take action to achieve women's equality in social, economic, community and political terms.

BPW holds Special Category Status at the United Nations and represents the voice of women in more than 100 countries. Established in Australia in 1925, BPW Australia has been influencing and driving legislative changes such as Paid Parental Leave Equal Pay and divorce law to help shape the way Australian women live their lives today.
